Fund manager's report

- European stocks fell in June on growing uncertainty over the pace of a global recovery amid continued weakness in the US and the Eurozone economies, reversing a three-month rally.
- Central banks in Europe and the UK kept key rates steady, amid easing inflation. The European Central Bank pumped a record €442 billion into the banking system, after warning that Eurozone banks faced another US$283 billion in write-downs this year and next.
- European industrial production, consumer spending and exports slumped, while a record 1.22 million jobs in the Eurozone were lost in the first quarter.
- The UK economy shrank at the fastest rate in 50 years in the first quarter. Elsewhere, Italian industrial production rebounded while consumer and business confidence improved in France and Germany.
- In portfolio activity, we sold our rights for shares of French property group Mercialis, which were received as a special dividend from our holding in French retailer Casino. We pared UK-based AstraZeneca, Sweden's Nordea Bank and Germany's BMW on price strength. Conversely, we added to Switzerland's Nestle, as it appeared attractively valued, given its prospects.
