Fund manager's report

- The MSCI Zhong Hua Index rebounded in February amid optimism that the global economic recovery would be sustained, though concerns over Beijing's monetary tightening and Greece's debt crisis as well as the US discount rate hike tempered gains.
- China's central bank raised lenders' reserve requirements for the second time this year as credit growth continued to accelerate. January consumer inflation figures were, however, weaker than expected.
- Hong Kong posted robust fourth-quarter growth. Separately, the government moved to cool its property market.
- In portfolio-related news, ASM Pacific's full-year profits exceeded expectations, while Yanlord improved earnings thanks to robust sales and property revaluations. Conversely, CLP was hurt by government price controls. In other news, China Mobile's total subscriber base grew in January. China Merchants Bank gained approval for a US$3.2 billion rights issue. CNOOC will increase production and capital expenditure this year.
- During the month, we initiated a position in China Resources Enterprise, whose core businesses include retail and beverage operations. The company has a professional management and healthy financials.
